Synopsis:

Beautiful, educational, and inspiring, ENDANGEROUSLY CUTE showcases a dozen distinctive and singularly irresistible animals from around the world in danger of extinction, each photographed in its native habitat. A Sokoke Scops Owl perched on a branch in a dense forest. An orange-haired Silvery Lutung infant clinging to its mother. Two Asiatic lion cubs playfully poised at the base of a tree. The images are complemented by a chart showing the animal's endangered status, from vulnerable to critically endangered, and a map showing where the animal exists in the wild. Detailed text outlines threats the species is currently facing, organizations that support the species, and fun facts: Did you know that every day after waking, Red Pandas clean their fur just like cats do?
